 tuition and all mandatory fees, plus $1,200 for books and supplies in conjunction with their application to MIT. Scholarships pay full board. High school seniors may apply for four-year scholarships through a national selection process, or through a professor of military science or on campus. Scholarships are available each year, and are awarded on campus through qualified applicants. Two-, three-, and four-year scholarships are available on a competitive basis to Army ROTC students who are interested in pursuing a graduate degree, they may be eligible to participate in the final two years of the Army ROTC program. If students have at least four semesters remaining in their academic program at MIT or are medically qualified in accordance with existing Army regulations; and will become a citizen before they graduate; physically and mentally qualified according to Army ROTC medical standards. To be eligible for Army ROTC scholarships and/ or enrollment in the junior- and senior year ROTC courses, students must be citizens of the United States or on the path to citizenship and will become a citizen before they graduate; physically and medically qualified in accordance with existing Army regulations; and enrolled at MIT, Harvard University, Tufts University, Wellesley College, Lesley University, Endicott College, Gordon College, Gordon-
Conwell Theological Seminary, or Salem State University as full-time students.

Application Procedure

Students normally apply for the four-year program during their first year, but students may enroll in the course or apply for a campus-based scholarship each semester. Interested students can inquire about the Army ROTC program by visiting the Army ROTC office at W59-192 (201 Vassar St, Cambridge, MA 02139), by calling 617-253-4471, by sending an email (goarmy@mit.edu), or by visiting the website (http://army-rotc.mit.edu) or the program's Facebook page (https://www.facebook.com/PaulRevereBattalion).