GLOBAL LANGUAGES

As MIT students pursue an expanding spectrum of international engagements, Global Languages classes and immersive international experiences help prepare them to live and work in the diverse and multilingual context of a globalizing world. Through our curriculum, students develop communicative and intercultural competencies, critical thinking skills, intellectual curiosity, diversity awareness, and cross-cultural understanding.

MIT’s Global Languages program offers a variety of areas of study in international languages, cultures, and intercultural communication. The curriculum consists of subject sequences in Arabic, Chinese, French, German, Japanese, Korean, Portuguese, Russian, and Spanish studies taught in the target language; a subject sequence in Studies in International Literatures and Cultures (SILC) taught in English; and subjects on the theory of languages taught by Linguistics faculty.

Concentrations are available in Chinese, French, German, Japanese, Korean, Portuguese, Russian, Spanish, and Theory of Language. Students can also fulfill a concentration in Other Languages by taking coursework in Arabic at MIT, or in other languages taken through cross-registration at Harvard or Wellesley. Minors are available in Chinese, French, German, Japanese, and Spanish; majors are available in French, German, and Spanish.

Undergraduate Study

Bachelor of Science in Global Studies and Languages (Course 21G)
Program I in French Studies (http://catalog.mit.edu/degree-charts/global-studies-languages-course-21g), Program II in German Studies (http://catalog.mit.edu/degree-charts/global-studies-languages-course-21g/#germanstudiestext), and Program III in Spanish Studies (http://catalog.mit.edu/degree-charts/global-studies-languages-course-21g/#spanishstudiestext) are designed to provide competence in reading, writing, and speaking; general knowledge of French, German, or Spanish culture and literature; and advanced subjects in literature, film, and cultural studies.

For each option, the student designs a program in consultation with an advisor in order to meet individual interests, abilities, and goals. However, all majors reflect a balance of historical, geographical, cultural, and linguistic competence.

Other Degree Programs
Joint degree programs are offered in French, German, and Spanish, and include majors in combination with a field in engineering or science (21G, 21S). See the Department of Humanities section for further information on joint degree programs (http://catalog.mit.edu/schools/humanities-arts-social-sciences/humanities/#undergraduatetext).

First Year Discovery

21G.012 Exploring Globalization through Chinese Food
Prereq: None
U (Spring)
Not offered regularly; consult department
1-0-0 units

Introduces students to some of the central themes of cultural globalization through the case study of Chinese food. An exploration of the cuisine in the local Boston area exposes students to the topics of global trade, migration, transnational business and labor, the transnational dissemination of knowledge, and cultural production. Readings and films include cookbooks, memoirs, reportage and documentaries. Includes walking tours of Boston’s Chinatown. Students produce a blog to document their findings. Concludes with a Chinese cooking workshop. Subject can count toward the 6-unit discovery-focused credit limit for first year students. Limited to 15; preference to first-year students.

21G.013 Discovering Multilingual Boston: Voices of Immigrant Communities
Pre req: None
U (Fall; partial term)
Not offered regularly; consult department
1-0-2 units
This discovery subject will expose first-year students to the 21G curriculum through exposure to the importance of global languages in our local community. Introduces Boston’s multilingual richness and vibrant immigrant communities through an exploration of the city’s diverse cultures and neighborhoods. Readings and films provide an overview of Boston’s recent immigrant profile, document key issues within immigrant communities, and provide testimonies of lived experience. Field trips and guest speakers allow students to learn from organizations working with immigrants in Boston neighborhoods. Students have the option to produce a blog to document their findings and report on an immigrant community, struggle, or testimony. Class meets every other week over the course of the term. Subject can count toward the 6-unit discovery-focused credit limit for first-year students. Limited to 16; preference for first-year students.

Pre req: None
Acad Year 2023-2024: Not offered
Acad Year 2024-2025: U (Fall; partial term)
1-0-2 units
Introduces students to contemporary Russia through analysis of major political, social, and cultural trends and addresses how they have developed due to the 2022 invasion of Ukraine. Considers the role of identity, state propaganda, civil society — including those in exile — and music both as an instrument of political power and popular resistance. Study materials include academic and media articles, recent documentaries, and video interviews with prominent figures in Russian science and culture. Subject can count toward the 6-unit discovery-focused credit limit for first-year students. Limited to 15.

Prereq: None
U (Fall, Spring)
Not offered regularly; consult department
3-0-9 units. HASS-H; CI-H

Examines issues and debates crucial to understanding contemporary Chinese society, culture, and politics. Discusses how cultural politics frames the way in which China is viewed by mass media around the world and by China scholars in the West. Topics include the Beijing Olympic Games; Mao in post-Mao China; the new patriotism; leisure and consumer culture; the rise of the internet and web culture in urban China; media censorship, remix, and creative online culture. Analyzes the central debate over progress and the role played by the state, the market, and citizen activists in engineering social change. Uses documentaries and feature films to illustrate the cultural, social and political changes that have taken place in China since the 1980s. Includes two short writing assignments and a final paper. Taught in English.

Prereq: One intermediate subject in Spanish or permission of instructor
U (Spring)
Not offered regularly; consult department
3-0-9 units. HASS-H
Explores paradigms of Latin American modernity, gender, and urban cultures through primary texts and media. Examines a range of materials (literature, films, visual arts, music, and advertising) to reflect on the region’s urbanization processes of the 20th and 21st centuries. Focuses on the production and representation of gender and women, in particular as key subjects of urbanization, mass media, and consumer culture. Discussions travel through urban centers as different as Buenos Aires, Mexico DF, Lima, Havana, Miami and New York, but are organized around four critical categories: urban spaces, labor, leisure, and citizenship. Taught in Spanish.
